

SKSU 6284	INTERNATIONAL LAW AND ORGANISATION
Course Classification	Compulsory
Instructors	Assoc. Prof. Dr. Sufian Jusoh

Synopsis

This course provides an introduction to the field of international law and organisation, examining the history, legal entity including underlying legal documents, legal doctrines behind formation of those international organisations, structures and legal culture. The course will examine the United Nations system; the Association of the Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and the World Trade Organisation (WTO) situating them in relationship to the broader institutional structures of public international law and regulation, private ordering and multinational enterprise, non-governmental organisation and transnational judicial cooperation. The course will also examine the relationship of those organisations with pertinent international issues such as economics and politics, the environment including climate change and sustainability.

Week	Topics
1	International Law and International Organisations
2	Architecture and Structure of International Law
3	Hierarchy of International Law and Impact on Domestic Legal System
4	The United Nations and League of Nations
5	United Nations Agencies
6	United Nations and International Rule Making
7	The World Trade Organisation
8	The World Economic Order
9	ASEAN: Formation and Legal Background
10	ASEAN: Communities and Dispute Settlement System
11	International Law and the Third World
12	Student Seminar and Presentations
13	Student Seminar and Presentations
14	Conclusion